01 May	Labor Day	Labor Day on May 01th is a national holiday in Italy, with official commemorations. The first May Day celebration in Italy took place in 1890. It started initially as an attempt to celebrate workers' achievements in their struggle for their rights and for better social and economic conditions. May Day is now an important celebration in Italy and is a national holiday regardless of what day of the week it falls. The "1st of May Concert", organized by Italian labour unions in Rome in Piazza di Porta San Giovanni in Rome has become an important event in recent years

02 JUNE	Italian Republic Holiday	Italian Republic Day is an Italian national celebratory day established to remember the birth of the Italian Republic. It is celebrated every year on 2 June, the date of the institutional referendum of 1946, with the main celebration taking place in Rome. The Italian Republic Day is one of the Italian national symbols.

01 NOVEMBER	All Saints' Day	The commemorations of the martyrs, common to several Churches, began to be celebrated in the 4th century. The first traces of a general celebration are attested in Antioch, and refer to the Sunday following Pentecost. This custom is also mentioned in the seventy-fourth homily of John Chrysostom (407) and is preserved to this day by the Eastern Churches.
